“Ain't I a Woman!” a winter concert by Women's Voices Chorus. Sunday, January 24, 2010 at 3 PM, University United Methodist Church Chapel Hill.

Learn more at 684-3855, allan@duke.edu , or www.womensvoiceschorus.org. Tickets, $15 adults, $5 students, advance discount for groups of 10 or more. The concert's title comes from the famous words of Sojourner Truth at the Ohio Women's Rights Convention in 1851, and features songs about heroines through the ages. From Old Testament heroines to the Virgin Mary, from Abraham Lincoln's mother to unnamed women toiling at factories and homes, this concert sings of the strength and grace of women, both young and old.

Fetal Alcohol Exposure Caregiver Support Group forming.

Those raising children who have special needs resulting from fetal alcohol exposure are invited to join with others who share similar interests via a newly organizing support group. Day, time and location of support group meetings will be based on the majority needs of participants. Group anticipates beginning regular monthly meetings in late January. Email support can begin earlier. Interested participants should contact Kathy Hotelling at 919-265-3390 or kathyhotelling@embarqmail.com as soon as possible.

Family Violence Prevention Center of Orange County is recruiting hotline volunteers! FVPC volunteers directly serve victims of domestic violence and their families and friends as well as the Orange County community at large. In December 09 alone, volunteers contributed over 1000 hours to the Orange County community to help men, women and children affected by domestic violence. Our next volunteer training session starts Tuesday February 16 and runs through Tuesday March 23. The 44-hour training includes both classroom and real time "shadowing" training. Prior to training, a completed application and interview is required. For more details and the application, please visit www.fvpcoc.org. Volunteers do not need to live in Orange County.
